Keys to Adolescent Literacy Session D: Teaching Text Structure to Support Reading and Writing

Live Virtual Professional Development

Virtual-Live Format: The Keys trainer will use Zoom video conferencing to deliver this training in an interactive format using features such as breakout rooms and chat.

Grounded in more than 20 years of experience and the latest research on effective adolescent literacy instruction, Keys to Adolescent Literacy provides powerful professional learning designed to enhance student literacy achievement incorporating Joan Sedita's The Essentials of Adolescent Literacy book.

Support grades K-5 students' reading comprehension and writing skills with practical strategies that help them recognize and use text structures effectively.

This session helps teachers of grades 5–12 strengthen students' reading comprehension and writing skills across all subject areas by making text structures visible in a variety of texts. Participants learn practical strategies for teaching students to recognize text structures while reading and consider text structures when writing. The session addresses multiple levels of text organization, including structures for narrative, informational, and argumentative texts; patterns of organization and corresponding transitions; and paragraph and sentence structures.

Session Topics Include:

- Understanding Text Structure in Reading and Writing
- Text Types
- Patterns of Organization
- Transitions
- Paragraph and Sentence Structure

A copy of the Essentials of Adolescent Literacy training book is required for this session and is not included in the registration fee. The book can be purchased on the Keys to Literacy website.

Connecting This Session to Keys to Literacy's Comprehensive Professional Learning Suite: This session can stand alone as an overview text structure. It complements and pairs well with Session C "Unlocking Meaning: Effective Comprehension Instruction" and Session E "Essentials of Effective Writing Instruction."
